TRAINS COLLIDE.

Two Persons Killed and Seven Others Injured.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN WORSE.

An Operator Failed to Report to One of the Trains an Order to Wait at a Station and Let the Other Train Pass.

COAL CITY, O., Dec. 31.—Two passenger trains collided on the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railroad near here. They were the Louisville express and the St. Louis accommodation. The latter was an hour late. Two persons were killed and seven injured.

Both engines were totally wrecked as the engineers had very little time to check their speed. The combination car of the Louisville express and the express car on the train from St. Louis were wrecked. When the engines were wrecked they knocked out a telegraph pole with such force as to cut off all telegraphic communications. All of the injured have been rescued and are being cared for.

The Dead.
Fireman Wilson of the Louisville express.
An unknown man buried under the wreck.

The Injured.
Fireman Hiram Brunting of the St. Louis train, bruises and cuts of leg, skull and shoulder; very dangerously injured.
Jacob Hager of the big cooper shop in Lawrenceburg, Ind., hip dislocated, leg, arm and head cut and bruised.

Alonzo Pruitt, engineer of the Louisville express, internal injuries, left arm badly cut and crushed.

James Gabriel, engineer of St. Louis train, back and side injured; taken to his brother's home in Cleveland.

Fred Bluecamp of Aurora, a passenger, severe scalp wounds.

T. M. Voight, express messenger on St. Louis train, internal injuries besides bad cuts and bruises. He called deliciously for his wife. He was left at Coal City.

Express Messenger Eisenborn of the Louisville express, very slightly; able to go home.

Of the injured all are very seriously hurt except Bluecamp and Eisenborn. It is feared that Brunting, Bauer and Pruitt are fatally hurt.

The cause of the accident was the failure of the operator at St. Louis to report to the Louisville train an order to wait at Delhi and let the St. Louis train pass it there. The trains, when they sighted each other a mile from Coal City, were going at full speed and had but little time to slow up before the collision. The road is comparatively straight at this point, otherwise the casualty would have been terrible.

POPULISTS WERE SILENT.

Republican Plurality Assumes Control of Senate Committees.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The committees of the senate have passed into the control of the republicans. The change in the political complexion of the committees was effected by the adoption of a resolution organizing the committees as agreed to by the republican and democratic steering committees. The Populists, with the exception of Mr. Kyle (S. D.), declined to vote, and the republicans having a plurality of the senate, were thus enabled to adopt the resolution by a vote of 30 to 23. Mr. Kyle voted with the democrats against the reorganization.

A two hour debate followed the adoption of the resolution, the purpose of which was mainly political. The democrats, under the leadership of Senator Gorman, ably seconded by Senator Harris, attempted to show that the reorganization was effected by an alliance between the republicans and Populists, contending that the silence of the latter, by making possible the reorganization, indicated acquiescence. They also insisted that the republican assumption of control saddled them with responsibility for legislation.

The Populists, led by Senator Allen (Neb.), and Senator Butler (N. C.), denied they were in any fashion responsible for the result. The republicans, under the leadership of Senator Mitchell, chairman of the republican steering committee, and assisted by Senators Hoar, Hale, Allison and Chandler, combated the argument of the democrats by asserting most emphatically that the Populists had even refused to make any suggestions as to their committee assignments and had as a matter of fact been left by the reorganization in the position to which they had been assigned under the democratic control of the senate.

JONES HAS AN AMENDMENT.

The House Bond Bill May Lose Its Identity in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Senator Jones of Arkansas has prepared an amendment which he proposes to offer to the house bond bill. It provides that any holder of silver bullion who is a citizen of the United States may tender the same to the secretary of the treasury and have it coined into silver dollars, the seigniorage to be the difference between the coinage value and the market price of the bullion in New York; for the cancellation of all banknotes of less than $100, directing the secretary of the treasury to coin the silver bullion into the treasury into silver dollars to be used in redeeming the treasury notes issued for the purpose of purchasing silver bullion under the Sherman act, and for the redemption of the greenbacks in either gold or silver and for their release according to the provisions of the act of 1878.

WOULDN'T LEAVE.

Mrs. Davidson Wants the "Unholy Thing" Exposed.

MONEY NO OBJECT TO HER.

Defendant's Attorney Asks For a Change of Venue on the Ground That the Judge Was Unfriendly to Prosecuting Witness.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—The case of Mrs. Mary A. Davidson, charged with extortion by Rev. C. O. Brown, whom she accused of intimacy with Miss Maria Overman, and from whom she obtained $500 as hush money, was called in the police court Monday. Dr. Brown claims he paid the woman the money to secure evidence upon which to insure her conviction, while the woman's explanation is that the money was for another woman, Mrs. Baddin, who cannot be found, but who, Mrs. Davidson claims, rented a room to Dr. Brown in which to meet Mrs. Overman.

The attorney for Mrs. Davidson applied for a change of venue on the ground of prejudice, finally explaining that Police Judge Campbell was unfriendly to Dr. Brown. This statement coming from the defense caused general surprise. The court denied the motion for a change of venue, stating that he had no quarrel with Brown, whom he believed to be a truthful and upright gentleman.

With the defendant's counsel he recalled an occasion when, from the pulpit, Dr. Brown, in the course of a sermon on corruption, read a grand jury report scoring the courts, and Judge Campbell particularly. On that occasion Judge Campbell, who was in Brown's church, arose in his seat and asked permission to correct Brown. The latter invited the judge to the pulpit when Campbell explained that the charge was the work of a lying grand jury, absolving Brown, however, from any imputation of natrurfulness.

Mrs. Davidson's attorney applied for a reduction of the prisoner's bail from $3,000 to $2,000. The court reduced the bail to $2,000, with the concurrence of Brown's attorney, who stated that he would consent to a still further reduction provided the court was satisfied the woman would be in court when needed. Mrs. Davidson addressed the court herself, dramatically stating that no sum of money would induce her to leave town, and that she would be on hand until "this unholy thing" should be exposed in the light of heaven. The case then went over until Thursday.

Taken In by the Police in Time to Prevent Their Being Mobbed.

COLUMBIA, O., Dec. 31.—J. J. Mortimer and Emma E. Palmer, spiritualists, are under arrest here on the charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. They gave a public seance Sunday night under the auspices of the local spiritualist association, and when a young man boldly exposed them by grabbing Mortimer and showing a hook under his vest whereby he made the table dance, the police arrested them and got them away just in time to prevent their being mobbed by the angry crowd who had been so cleverly galled.

In the meantime the doorkeeper escaped with about $500 he had taken in from the dupes. Faith in spiritualism here has been given a severe setback.

WANT OUR BONDS.

The United States Can Get All the Gold It Wants.

ITS CREDIT IS UNLIMITED.

Another Bond Issue Has Been Fully Agreed Upon and the Only Thing Wanting Now is Secretary Carlisle's Signature.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—There is now no reasonable doubt that another bond issue has been fully agreed upon and that the details of a contract with a syndicate of which Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan is the head, have been arranged, so that nothing remains to be done to carry it into effect but for the secretary of the treasury to sign his name thereto. Thus the president is prepared for any emergency, and there is no doubt that should heavy withdrawals of gold for export again set in, another issue would be announced. The fact that there have been no withdrawals for export within the last several days, although sterling exchange has ruled at or above the shipping points, gives credence to an opinion held in treasury circles that the market has already begun to feel the syndicate influence against exports.

The amount of the next issue, it is almost certain, has been fixed at $100,000,000, and it is believed that the terms of the contract are rather more favorable to the government than those under which the last issue was made. In this connection it is recalled that between Aug. 31, 1895, the date upon which the national debt reached its highest point, and March 1, 1893, the amount of the government outstanding obligations was reduced by $1,881,367,871. To accomplish this reduction bonds were purchased to the amount of $770,809,750. Of this amount $24,350,300 were purchased prior to 1879, and $446,459,450 since that date.

ACCIDENT TO COAL FLEET.

Wood was seriously, but not fatally injured. Two coal boats and one barge, containing 60,000 bushels of coal, are at the bottom of the river as a result of the accident, and the channel is blocked. The sunken boats will be blown out with dynamite by the government today.

The Invention of a Woman.

Mrs. Zonowsky, an American woman, though the wife of a Russian, has invented a new kind of paper, and has sold the secret to a Liverpool firm for a large cash remuneration, with the promise of future dividends in case of commercial prosperity. Mrs. Zonowsky one day left some lard on a window sill, wrapped in ordinary brown paper, and when she came back to find it she noticed that the under portion of it had peeled off in a most extraordinary manner, making a thin substance, like a thin sheet of transparent paper, between the lard and the actual paper wrapping. She went to work to investigate, and after many failures demonstrated by practical experiment that a new material can be manufactured from animal substance. This material is to be used for various purposes, such as for making tissue paper, flowers and artists' paper.

In 1892 Mr. A. L. Coldwater, who owns three retail drug stores in New York City, having learned of the great value of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds, croup and whooping cough, ordered a supply for his customers. It met with so much favor that he soon found it necessary to order more, and during the winter sold over two gross of the remedy. He says it gives the best satisfaction of any cough cure he has ever handled. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by Melville Bros., next to Post Office. C. W. Heister, 52 Public Square.

HER WEDDING INVITATION.

It came today, and I must confess that it brought a sweet emotion. As I thought of the time when my happiness was measured by her devotion. 'Twas the honest love of a pure, strong boy, With plans for our future union, And the troubles of life, with their base alloy, Never entered our sweet communion. But the broadening tide of my life swept on In a full and joyous measure, And I thought of the boyish love had gone With many a worthy pleasure. Many years have passed since I vowed that love In my frank, impulsive fashion, And that little girl, with her dainty ways, Was the shrine of my love's surrender. —Edmond Picton in Detroit Free Press.

Two Reasons.

At a circuit court held some years ago in a western state an action of ejectment was tried "by the court without a jury." The decision rendered was couched in such a way that it caused considerable amusement.

The suit was brought by a religious society to recover possession of a cemetery. The defendant was a physician in active practice, who, as one of a committee appointed by the church, had bought the ground for the use of the society. Afterward he severed his connection with the society, and it was found that he had taken the title in his own name and intended to appropriate the premises for his private use. The defendant insisted that he had bought the ground in his own right after his relations to the society had ceased.

The court, after hearing the evidence and arguments, proceeded to state the grounds for his decision and ordered judgment for the plaintiff. Whereupon the defendant's counsel arose and asked the court to state more fully the reasons for the decision. "Certainly," said his honor promptly. "But as you have heard what I have said I have only two additional reasons to give. One is that the church seems to need a cemetery, and the other that the doctor has failed to show that his practice is sufficiently large to make it necessary for him to keep a burying ground of his own."—Youth's Companion.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Melville Bros., next to Post Office. C. W. Heister, 52 Public Square.

A TYPICAL WESTERN GIRL.

Exponents of the Lovely Miss Staunton of Davenport in the Adirondacks.

With the close of the hunting season in the Adirondacks the hundreds of enthusiastic followers of the chase are returning to their homes.

Nine out of ten persons who ever think of this noble sport at all are inclined to look upon it as being the exclusive monopoly of the sterner sex. This was to a great extent true in years gone by, but is such no longer. Indeed a very large proportion of the admirers of Diana in our great state park—the Adirondacks—are women, and the re-

ords go to show that the dainty and delicate hand that poured tea at the pink reception or was gem laden at the swell german can pull a trigger at the right time and bring down an antlered monarch of the woods after the fashion of "any old guide." Not only this, but some of the best shots and most interesting hunting affairs of the season are chargeable to women.

Attired in her suit of corduroy, usually of a grayish or slaty blue, with jacket, shirt waist and short skirt, she goes forth to win laurels with her rifle. She wears heavy tan shoes that lace high and stiff leather leggings that buckle from the ankle to the knee. Around her waist is a cartridge belt, and a hunting knife fits snugly into its scabbard at her side. The knife is usually for ornament only, although at times it may come in very handy to cut away twigs in tight places or peel fine chips for the evening fire.

Some of the female followers of the chase are the Misses Jackson of New York, Miss Grace White of Philadelphia, Miss McAllister of Washington, Miss Julia Belo of Galveston and Miss Frances May Staunton of Davenport.

Miss Staunton is a typical western girl, independent, bright, active and of charming face and figure. She has lovely brown eyes that speak no fear, and with them she has gazed upon a bear at midnight. Not only that, but she killed Bruin, who stood open mouthed and fierce 20 feet away. The incident occurred on Long Pond, where a party of young people was in camp. Miss Staunton was awakened by the growls of a bear, and hastily donning her dressing gown she seized a rifle and went out. Bruin, black and ugly, was facing the tent only a rod and a half away, when plucky Miss Staunton emptied the contents of her rifle into his head and breast. The bear made several attempts to reach the young woman, but died within ten feet of her. Miss Staunton, though an excellent shot, has not had the success in deer hunting she otherwise might have had, and this because of her great love of song. Possessed of a voice of wonderful sweetness and purity, she has a passionate fondness for singing while in the woods, and the deer, not especially fond of a human voice, however beautiful, do not generally intrude upon her presence. Still, she has killed at least as many as the law allows this year.—New York Times.

The Ancient Idea.

It was on Sept. 24, 1761, that the Worcester Journal (England) published a thoughtful article entitled "Qualifications of a Wife." "In spelling a little becoming deficiency, and in the penetration (or what is generally called stopping) by no means conversant. In conversation a little of the lip, but not of the stammer. A decent share of common sense, just seasoned with a little repartee—a small modicum of wit, but no learning; no learning (either ancient or modern) upon any consideration whatever. A good person, but not perfectly beautiful—a moderate height—a complexion not quite fair, but a little brown. Great good nature, and a prudent generosity." And so on, and so on.

Declined a Renomination.

Mrs. Mary J. R. N. Strang, who for the past 15 years has served as school trustee in Long Island City, N. Y., declined a renomination. The New York Herald says: "She is an excellent school official, and her retirement from public life is a source of much regret. She took much interest in school matters and during her long official life has always been the active secretary of the board of trustees."

A New Southern Poet.

The roll of southern poets has been increased by Miss Mary Louise Huntley of Atlanta. She is a tall, slender, dark girl, reserved, dignified and studious. Her last poem, "The Sobbing Rain," is an exquisite idyll and was quoted and reprinted by the press of the country. She is the third talented singer in her city, the other two being Lollie Belle Wylie and Arella Bell Key.

A Mohair Crepon Skirt.

The sensible woman, says a fashion paper, in purchasing her winter wardrobe will buy a mohair crepon skirt for theater wear. A skirt of this material will be found sticky in appearance, will look well with any bodice, and its wearing capacity is unmeasured. The fact that this quality of crepon does not wrinkle makes it particularly desirable for theater wear.

A FASHIONABLE RUSE.

That Things Are Not Always What They Seem Evidenced in This Case.

The season of weddings taxes the ingenuity no less than the purses of fashionable devotees. The deceptions to which many of the so-called upper crust resort to discharge social obligations are almost incredible to old fogies not in the swim. It has long been the accepted custom of brides who receive many duplicate presents to exchange the same at the stores where they were purchased. When the articles have not been marked or defaced in any manner merchants, as a rule, are very willing to make satisfactory exchanges.

A volume might be written on the revelations that this custom has often brought about. It has been the unguessed cause of more than one social sensation. Less than a year ago a fashionable bride of Gotham received a gorgeously showy gift in response silver from an old school-girl friend, daughter of a multimillionaire. The present was displayed in a beautiful box bearing the stamp of a famous house, and attracted unusual attention from the guests. Several months after the wedding the bride, in an unlucky moment, took this apparently gorgeous gift, together with others, to exchange for articles for which she had more immediate need.

When the selections she made were delivered at her residence she was surprised to find the response silver. A note from the firm stated that the silver had not been purchased at their store. It was plated goods. They added, however, that they had detected the trade mark of a firm in the Bovey. If madam desired, they would furnish the address. A visit to the Bovey jeweler confirmed this assertion, and the indignant bride bided her time. In a short time the giver of the spurious silver was wedded. The most striking gift she received was a familiar box, in which reposed the unlucky piece of response silver. It bore no name; it was not exhibited. No comment was ever made by either party. To all outward appearance the social intimacy is untroubled.—New York Herald.

LESS TRUTHFUL.

This Is a Man's Assertion in Regard to Women Compared With Men.

A man who has made a study of women and their ways remarked the other day that women are, as a set, less frank and truthful than men. Whatever truth there is in this assertion we may be sure it is at least not innate, but due to the difference in the requirements of the two sexes and the consequent difference in their education. Men are taught to reveal true natures from the cradle to the grave. Men are taught that, being human, they are subject to various passions and liable to fall into error which it is not necessary for them to conceal, for if they deviate from the straight and narrow path the world will quickly forget and forgive. Women, on the contrary, are taught that if they are not inwardly statues of decorum, they must make it appear that they are, for the world is merciless to one of their sex who by word or deed hints that the smallest tottering on her pedestal, not to mention even a momentary descent from it, is possible.

In short, women are required to conceal their real human selves from all beholders as absolutely as they conceal their lower limbs in the conventional draperies of femininity, while men are as free to reveal their real selves to the world as to clothe themselves in the outer garments of their sex. But concealment or lack of frankness is by no means untruthfulness.—Philadelphia Press.

The Frog—A Natural History.

Born of a stone, he lives under a stone and will dig in it his grave. I visit him frequently, and whenever I lift the stone, I fear to find him and fear that he may not be there. He is there. Hidden in that dry refuge, clean, narrow, quite his own, he fills it, swollen like a miser's purse.

If the rain makes him come out, he comes toward me. A few heavy jumps, and he stops on his thighs and looks at me with his reddened eyes. Though the unjust world treats him as a leper, I do not fear to sit by him and to place near his face my human face.

Then I will overcome a remnant of disgust and caress you with my hand, frog!

One swallows in life things that make one's heart sicker.

Still, yesterday, I lacked tact. "My poor friend," I said, "I do not wish to grieve you, but how ugly you are!"

He opened his mouth, puerile and toothless, and replied, with a slight English accent: "And you?"—Paris Echo.

One of Her Majesty's Collies.

Among the colored collies the queen's favorite is Darnley II. In color he is black and sable, relieved by the snowiest of collars and ruffs, white legs and white tip to brush. He was presented to her majesty by the Rev. Hans Hamilton. Darnley II is quite of the latter day stamp and type of collie—a nice long head with semierect ears—and one of the smartest of his breed at Windsor. Whenever the queen comes to the kennels, Darnley is asked for and brought out to show himself, and good dog, he at once "grins" with delight and welcome.—Westminster Gazette.

Cruel Tortures.

In ancient times prisoners were subjected to the most cruel tortures and terrible forms of death. The monuments and records of Nebuchadnezzar tell with great unctious how many thousands of his enemies he beheaded, impaled and flayed alive.

Two Pairs of Eyes.

He (delighted with a new play)—Isn't it grand? She (looking at the heroine's dress)—Perfectly lovely! It must have been made by Worth.—Sp. we Moments.

SHE THOUGHT OF SOMETHING.

A Mountain Girl's Bright Idea Saved the Lives of Passengers.

"Speaking of experiences on the railroad," said a New York traveling man, "I had a slight scrape one time on a mountain road in Tennessee that may be worth the hearing."

"We were going down a long grade of ten miles in a mixed train—that is, we had a gondola loaded with ties at the end car, with our two passenger coaches and a baggage car, and I should say we were making about 20 miles an hour on a track that would be treating us very kindly if it didn't sling us into eternity if we dared to add five miles an hour to our speed when I happened to look out of the rear door and saw a wild train of loaded coal cars swinging down after us. They had evidently started at a tipple which we had passed only a few minutes before, and when I saw them they were going so fast that they distanced the men on the ground, who made a run to get on and stop their farther flight. I made a wild rush for the conductor, but before I reached him he had ordered the engineer to let out his engine for all she was worth and in this way keep ahead of our chasers. Fortunately we had no women aboard, and the men could be kept in better control, though it was all we could do to keep them from jumping off."

"It was only a short time until we began to see that our salvation lay in the pursuing train flying the track, because we had reached our limit, and our train was swaying and tossing so that everybody was scared out of his wits. I know I was, and I just sat in my seat and held on, waiting and listening to the thunder of the train behind us, which was not 500 yards away and gaining every second. It was far heavier than ours, and I know that if anybody went off the track it wasn't going to be the coal train. I said a moment ago we had no women aboard. I meant we had none to speak of."

"There was one, but she was a homely mountain girl who didn't seem to know anything, and because she sat quiet in the corner and didn't scream we thought she didn't amount to enough to count. I was looking at her in a dazed kind of a way when all of a sudden she lit out of her seat as if she had been shot out of it, and knocking everybody out of the way she dashed out of the rear door before anybody could touch her, and we thought she had jumped off, but she hadn't. She jumped for the open car, hanging on like a cat until she got to the far end of it, and in a second she was tumbling those ties off at the rate of a dozen a second."

"They would hit the track and bounce every which way, but she kept piling them off, the coal train getting closer every second, and at last a couple of them stuck up in a cattle guard, and the next thing we knew there was a terrific crash. Rails and ties and track and coal cars flew, and the coal train rolled over itself and went down the hill in a heap. By George, as that girl stood there in her plain calico dress and her old sunbonnet and watched that train pile up at her feet I thought that Joan of Arc, Cleopatra, Queen Elizabeth, Grace Darling and the lot of them weren't a patching to her, and as far as we were concerned they weren't."

"She had saved our train and our lives, and we took her on with us in triumph. Then we made up a purse for her big enough to buy a farm with, and I'll bet she's got more good clothes and jewelry and books and trinkets and things than any girl in the mountains, for we never forgot her. She doesn't quite appreciate some of the fine things she has, but what do we care for that? We appreciate her just the same."—Washington Star.

The Imperishable Hotel Keeper.

I once witnessed in a hotel a perfect commotion started by an Englishman who had dared express his dissatisfaction at the way he was treated. He was in the hall. "This is the worst managed hotel I have ever been in," he exclaimed to the clerk. "Where is the proprietor? I should like to speak to him." The proprietor was in the hall busily enjoying the scene. He was pointed out to the guest by the clerk. The Englishman, excited and angry, went up to the proprietor.

"Is it you who are running this house?" he asked.

"Well," said the proprietor, with his cigar in his mouth and his hands in his pockets, "I thought I was till you came."

The Englishman looked at him, turned back, paid his bill and departed.—Max O'Rell in North American Review.

The Bayonet.

The bayonet was invented in 1523 by a woman of Bayonne, and the use of this weapon was at first strongly reprobated by military authorities. The first battle in which a bayonet charge decided the fate of the day was that at Neerwinden in 1562.

AUTUMN SONG.

A song of the reaping time, Of the feast days of the year: A song of the grain and the well filled vats, And the bustling time that's near. Here's a lay, for a merry romp In the brown old fields and vales; And ho, for the mead where the cattle feed! And lo, for the autumn gales! A hunt through the tall, slim woods For the fruit of the oak and vine, And a rest at the foot of the last red roof! And a call where the chipmunks dine. A snail in the morning dews, And a laugh in the streams that flow As they share their joy with the girl and boy That today may be a rambling go.—Frank Walcott Hunt in St. Nicholas.

WHAT THE GRAND DUKE HEARD.

European Officers Discussed the Capture of American Cities.

The Grand Duke Alexis was at Kiel. He is a full Russian admiral now, and the head of the Russian navy. He was a frequent visitor to the Americans, and, like all the other notables, talked with the utmost frankness to our officers.

One day, watching the Columbia as she rode the waves as lightly and with the easy grace of a blue wing teal, the grand duke said to a captain: "I'm glad you Americans are rebuilding your fleet. Do you know what most impressed me when I visited your country? Let me tell you. The first thing was your wonderful national wealth; the second, the absolutely inadequate means at your disposal for national defense. You were like a drunken man with pockets full of money and two or three hungry ruffians on the dark side of the street waiting a chance to attack him."

"Why, do you mean to say?"—began the somewhat startled captain, when the Russian put his hand on the other's arm and said: "Twice in my career I have heard the project of capturing one or two of your great cities and holding them for ransom deliberately discussed by officers of European fleets whose countries had hard work to make ends meet. And they meant it too. I once made a sensation when, after listening to a conversation of this kind, in which the officers of four different fleets took part, I said: 'Gentlemen, the United States and Russia are friends. Should she be unjustly attacked, Russia would help to see that the wrong was righted.' Ah, I can't tell you where or who it was. Come over to the Kurik [the Russian flag-ship] and have a glass of wine."—Washington Post.

The Faust Legend.

Almost every renowned man of antiquity in the middle ages was believed to be attended by a spiritus familiaris, and not a few were suspected of being in direct league with the devil. Probably the oldest legend of which the Faust legend is a continuous thread is that of Simon Magus, mentioned in the history of the apostles.

According to Justin, he was a native of Gittion, a village in Samaria. He was, no doubt, a man of great intellectual powers. He was the father of the school of the Gnostics. It is also reported of him that he could make himself invisible, that he could pass through flames unharmed, could transmute matter, make gold and exorcise demons—in fact, he had claim to all these powers and his name lived in the mouths of the people as a sort of Demetrius through many centuries until some other miracle working personality took his place at the popular fireside. Unusual accomplishments, great erudition, were attributed to the supernatural influence, and the general disposition to superstitious assumption was strengthened on the one hand by dogmatic affirmation on the part of the church of the existence of a personal satan, with his numerous household, and on the other hand, by incorporating the magic arts among the practical sciences, of which astrology and alchemy occupied no mean part.—Memorabilia.

Man Overboard.

The presence of mind of a certain well known actor was always very remarkable, but was never put to so severe a test as on the following occasion: While acting the part of a pirate chief he was being conveyed in a vessel across the stage with his band of brigands on deck beside him.

One of the supers, whose duty it was to work the waves under large sheets of gauze, was so unfortunate as to put his head through the gauze and to appear standing in the middle of the mimic sea before the full view of the audience.

The actor on the vessel, without losing his presence of mind, called out: "A man overboard!" and the astonished super was hauled upon deck by the pirates and the applause of the spectators, who imagined it was a part of the play.—London Spectator.

Inoculation For Yellow Fever.

At the meeting of the American Public Health association at Denver, Dr. Manuel Garmuna y Valle of Mexico read a description of his discovery of a certain cure for yellow fever, which he has used successfully in hundreds of cases. His method is to make a subcutaneous injection in the cellular tissue of the arm of a secretion taken from a yellow fever patient between the fourth and fourteenth days of the fever. This effects a cure, but the disease can be guarded against in this way, just as smallpox is guarded against by vaccination.—Baltimore Sun.

Poverty is very terrible, and sometimes kills the very soul within us, but it is the north wind that lashes men into vikings; it is the soft, luscious south wind which lulls them to lotus dreams.—Ouida.

There is a false modesty, which is vanity; a false glory, which is levity; a false grandeur, which is meanness; a false virtue, which is hypocrisy; and a false wisdom, which is prudery.—Bryant.

In every apartment the screen is absolutely necessary. It shuts off the ugly bed, hides a bedroom door and conceals drawers, which in any apartment are so hideous.—

Substitute for Gold.

A new alloy has been discovered which so closely resembles gold as to defy every one but experts in test. It can be polished, drawn, bent and soldered in the same manner. It retains its color and luster even when exposed to the action of ammonia or nitrous fumes. It is composed of an alloy of 34 per cent copper and 66 per cent of antimony. The antimony is added to the copper when the two metals melted, and a small quantity of magnesium and calcium carbide are added.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. Gundersen, of Dimondale, Minn. we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation recommending Dr. King's Discovery, as the result was all marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she brought down with pneumonia, ceasing La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would hours with little interruption and seemed as if she could not surmount. A friend recommended King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory results." Trial bottles free at village's Drug Store. Regular size and $1.00.

A PRACTICAL JOKE.

I NEEDED THE AID OF A MINISTER AND THE MARRIAGE CEREMONY.

The Spinster in the Millinery Shop Wanted Some Fun. The Preacher Proposed an Hour For Thought. Annie Cried and Charlie Paid the Fee.

Rev. William H. Luckenbach of Hudson, N. Y., sends the following to the New York World:

I was once innocently made a party to an attempted mock marriage. There was a millinery establishment in the place, run by several giddy spinsters whose chances for matrimony had been growing less and less for many years. It was familiarly known in my congregation as the "shop," and it had become a rendezvous for the young people, who frequently happened in to exchange gossip and enjoy the pleasure of intimate acquaintance.

There entered the "shop" one evening a woman who would have been offended if we had called her "old," and of whom we would not have told the truth of we had said that she was "young." Behaving forwardly toward Amelia, one of the spinsters, she exclaimed in a jocosely despairing tone:

"I am so tired of waiting for an offer of marriage that I'll marry the first man that comes along and offers his hand."

"Good for you, Annie," said Amelia. "Who knows but that we may see a wedding here this evening?"

Several others had dropped in meanwhile to enjoy the ebullience of the "shop." It so happened that among them there came a fine young man, who, Annie had several times learned to her discomfort, was as witty a practical joker as herself. Incidental greetings had scarcely passed among the levy of merry companions before Amelia exclaimed, in a tone and manner that at once quieted the sallies of the moment:

"Charlie, Annie says that she is so tired of waiting for an offer of marriage that she will marry the first man who will propose to her."

Lifting his hat gracefully, and looking at Annie without a blush, apparently unabashed by the unexpected challenge, he answered:

"I am at your disposal, Annie. How would I suit you?"

"Very good," said Annie. "Send for the minister and we'll be married right here on the spot."

It was not long after that my door-bell rang. Responding to the ring I found there the brother of the spinster, who had sent for me to come down to the "shop" to marry a couple who were looking for a minister.

On entering the place and discovering no strange couple there apparently contemplating matrimony, I at once suspected that I was to be made a party to some practical joke involving the marriage service—a kind of merit or pastime that I could not encourage. I asked, however, for the parties to be married, intending, if it should further appear that the company were expecting only amusement, to give them gently a brief lecture on the impropriety of playing marriage and the risks often incurred by the persons doing this.

Immediately upon stepped before me Charlie and Annie. Meanwhile, as if by preconcerted action, there was no exhibition at all of merriment by any one of the company.

I was greatly embarrassed. Charlie, I knew, was engaged to an estimable lady in Philadelphia.

A happy thought occurred to me. "I will not marry you now," I said, "but I will return home and leave you an hour to think of it. If at the end of the hour you are still resolved to get married, come to my house and I will marry you."

"Fine," said Charlie. "That's fine," an expression of relief as the same moment overspreading his countenance, "and whether we come or not," he continued, "you shall have a fee for your trouble."

The hour passed away, but they did not come.

Among the callers on the following day was Annie. She had come to make explanations. She had not intended to marry Charlie. She supposed I would read the marriage service as usual, but when I should come to ask her, "Do you take G. here for your wedded husband?" etc., she would have answered "No," and turning away she would have had "the laugh" on him.

"Yes, Annie, but suppose he had said 'No' before you?"

"Then of course it would have been on me; but he didn't think of that."

"But another and more important view of it, Annie, is this: It was not necessary for me last evening to read the marriage service at all. Had I simply pronounced Charlie and you man and wife, you would have been married in law as effectually as if I had read the whole formula from beginning to end."

"Oh, Mr. L.," said Annie, bursting into tears, "was I so nearly married? I thought that you were obliged to read the whole ceremony, and when you came to question me, I would answer 'No,' and that would end it. I am so glad that you took the course you suggested. Never again will I act so foolishly."

We were not done talking about the matter before the door-bell rang again and an attendant brought to me a handsome steady gown, with the compliments of Charlie for not marrying him.

Pat and Lean.

Paddy had a pig which he regularly crammed one day and starved the next.

When asked why he did so, he replied: "Och, sure, and isn't it I that like to have my bacon with a stroke of fat and a stroke of lean equally, one after another?"—London Answers.
